MARA INTERIOR DESIGN

"My greatest accomplishment to date is finding the balance with my children and those close to me, while building a boutique design studio," says Mara Green, owner and principal designer of Mara Interior Design. Several milestone experiences along the way informed her career success, including growing up dancing, and studying and living abroad in London for six years. Both allowed for design growth through travel and experiencing different cultures, giving her a more worldly perspective and relatability to clients. "After returning to the States and to school for interior design as a mother of two boys, I eventually branched out from working as an interior designer to founding Mara Interior Design," she says. Beginning with primarily remodels from the comfort of her home, Green was eventually awarded her first new build, leading to multiple luxury residential homes and commercial projects. Timeless allure and design awareness are key to her stylistic approach. "Our aim is to create timeless spaces with a foundation of minimalistic beauty, allowing for the individual style and lifestyle of the client to come through," she says. Taking inspiration from travel, art and photography, Green infuses every design with modern European influence, paying tribute to where her love of design was born.

Ask the Expert

What type of project or location would you love to take on or work in?

A modern renovation in the wine country of Chianti, Italy.

In what ways do you include the client in your creative process?

The client can often feel overwhelmed, but once we bring their expressions together in a cohesive and structured way, they feel confident in our creative ability to communicate their design.

What is the next move for your firm?

Soon, we will be completing several modern homes, opening the new Mountainside Fitness Center, and beginning homes in the prestigious Crown Canyon community, located in Paradise Valley and Scottsdale.

"Our foundation derives from trend-resistant design, so we work primarily in modern styles with an organic feel to the finish."
